

InsightOut

Enneagram Assessment

PREPARED FOR

Anders Wennerstrom

Type 3 — The Performer · August 2026

WHAT'S IN THIS REPORT

PREPARED FOR

Anders Wennerstrom

Type 3 — The Performer · August 2026

01	Welcome	1
	What this report is, how to use it, and what to bring to your debrief.
02	What Is the Enneagram?	2
	A brief introduction to the system: nine types, one dynamic map.
03	Quick Reference	3
	Your assessment results at a glance, and tips for your debrief conversation.
04	Exploring Your Type Hypothesis	4
	Your leading type, its core motivation, and how the pattern shows up in the real world.
05	Your Wings	6
	The two adjacent types that flavor your Three, and what each one offers you.
06	Your Stress and Security Points	7
	Where you move under pressure and in flow, and how to draw on both.
07	Instincts & Subtypes	8
	Your dominant instinct, the three instincts, and what it means to be a One-to-One Three.
08	Development Ideas for Performers	9
	Practical ways to build courage, agility, and resilience, starting today.
09	Your Thoughts	10
	A closing note and questions to reflect and/or journal on.

A NOTE FROM CAI & MO

Welcome, Anders!

You just did something most people never do.

You took the time to look inward. That's not a small thing. However you were introduced to InsightOut (through a coach, a friend, or sheer coincidence), we're glad you're here.

This report is built from your answers to the InsightOut Enneagram Assessment. It introduces the basic Enneagram concepts, goes deep on your "home base" type, explores the dynamics that shape it, and offers development ideas for putting what you learn to work.

Hold all of it as a hypothesis to be tested in the real world. You are the final authority on your own type; what follows is a starting point. Our goal is to help you see yourself more clearly: what drives you, how you see the world, and why you do the things you do. That clarity is what lets you step out of your default patterns and bring more range to everyday life.

If you want to go further, connect with us or any InsightOut-certified coach, or visit www.hiveleadership.com/the-enneagram.

We're honored to be on this journey with you.

With gratitude and respect,

Cai Delumpa

Co-Founder, Hive, Inc.
Type 7 · The Enthusiast

Monique Breault

Co-Founder, Hive, Inc.
Type 9 · The Peacemaker

What Is the Enneagram?

The Enneagram is a dynamic system that describes nine distinct ways of being in the world: nine strategies, shaped early in life, for how to get love, belonging, and control. Each type is anchored by a core worldview and a deep, core motivation that drives how we think, feel, and behave.

Understanding our type is about seeing the pattern clearly enough that we have a choice about it. Below is an introduction to the nine types and their core motivation, along with the gifts each one offers.

THE NINE ENNEAGRAM TYPES — SCAN EACH ONE

As you read, notice which descriptions pull at you, even slightly. That is the Enneagram beginning to work.

TYPE 1

The Improver

Sees a world that falls short of what it could be. Motivated to be good, principled, and beyond criticism. Attention goes to what is wrong or broken.

Gifts: Integrity, discernment, high standards

TYPE 2

The Giver

Sees a world where love is earned through service. Motivated to be needed and seen as caring. Attention goes to others' needs and relationship dynamics.

Gifts: Warmth, attunement, deep care

TYPE 3

The Performer

Sees a world that rewards results. Motivated to achieve and be recognized as valuable. Attention goes to goals, image, and how others perceive them.

Gifts: Drive, adaptability, inspiring

TYPE 4

The Individualist

Sees a world of infinite depth, with something always missing. Motivated to be authentic and deeply known. Attention goes to what is absent or lacking.

Gifts: Depth, originality, emotional honesty

TYPE 5

The Observer

Sees a world that is overwhelming and intrusive. Motivated to be competent and self-sufficient. Attention goes to ideas, concepts, and conserving energy.

Gifts: Clarity, insight, objectivity

TYPE 6

The Questioner

Sees a world that is unpredictable and unsafe. Motivated by security, trust, and preparedness. Attention goes to potential threats and who can be counted on.

Gifts: Loyalty, foresight, fierce commitment

TYPE 7

The Enthusiast

Sees a world full of possibility, threatened by limitation and pain. Motivated to stay free and experience life fully. Attention goes to options and what is next.

Gifts: Possibility, joy, generative energy

TYPE 8

The Protector

Sees a world where only the strong protect the weak. Motivated to assert strength and guard against injustice. Attention goes to power dynamics and who needs protecting.

Gifts: Strength, advocacy, courage

TYPE 9

The Peacemaker

Sees a world with underlying unity that conflict threatens. Motivated to maintain harmony and avoid disconnection. Attention goes to others' perspectives and common ground.

Gifts: Inclusion, steadiness, presence

Each of us has access to all nine Enneagram types, and one of them is your home base. Keep reading to find out which type your responses pointed to most clearly.

NAVIGATING THE ENNEAGRAM SYSTEM

Your Wings

2 WING · TYPE 2

The Giver

AS A RESOURCE

4 WING · TYPE 4

The Individualist

AS A RESOURCE

NAVIGATING THE ENNEAGRAM SYSTEM

Your Stress and Security Points

The Enneagram system shows you where you tend to move when you're feeling secure and in flow, and where you tend to move under an unusual amount of stress. Both moves happen in the background, part of the same internal operating system as your Home Base type and your Wings. When you access these points intentionally they become valuable resources to expand your range of choices in any situation.

9

STRESS POINT · TYPE 9

The Peacemaker

Under pressure, Threes shift toward Nine — more disengaged, diffuse, unable to mobilize. The engine stalls out.

- The results stopped landing, and effort no longer converts into anything visible.
- You go quiet and busy at once: motion without traction, tasks without the goal.
- The drive that usually carries you is the exact thing that will not start now.

AS A RESOURCE

Draw on it when you need rest, presence, and the ability to stop without losing yourself.

6

SECURITY POINT · TYPE 6

The Questioner

When Threes feel safe and supported, they move toward Six — more loyal and collaborative. Success stops being a solo project.

- You work with people rather than past them, and the win stops being only yours.
- It becomes reachable when you let someone see the effort and not just the result.
- Belonging stops competing with achievement, and starts making it worth something.

AS A RESOURCE

Draw on it when you need loyalty, trust, and a purpose you share with other people.

Putting Your Resources to Work

Your Wings and your Stress and Security points give you more choices, and more range. The first step is catching yourself in the moment, pausing to notice, and then making a purposeful choice.

CATCH THE SHIFT

You notice the momentum going flat, and yourself filling the day with motion that goes nowhere.

NOTICE THE IMPACT

The harder you push the less moves, and the person underneath the performance is out of reach.

THEN CHOOSE

Stop, and tell one person what is actually going on for you before you produce another result.

QUESTIONS TO EXPLORE

Your Thoughts

Whatever landed as recognition is good data. So is whatever made you want to argue with a paragraph or two. This report is a hypothesis, not a verdict, and the only way to test it is against your own experience. The questions below are a place to start. An InsightOut coach can help you pressure-test any of it.

What's one thing you want to remember from this report?

What's one thing you're still curious about and want to learn more about?

What's one insight from Development Ideas you'd like to work on?

What would working on that insight give you?

What else would you like to capture?