

EXPLORING YOUR TYPE HYPOTHESIS

Type 9 · The Peacemaker

Based on your responses to the questionnaire, we're presenting you with Type 9 - The Peacemaker as the strongest hypothesis of your home base Enneagram type. We encourage you to hold this as a hypothesis until you've read through this report and/or have discussed it with your coach. Remember, you are the ultimate authority on your Enneagram type.

9

Core Motivation

To maintain inner and outer peace, stay connected to others, and avoid the conflict and discomfort that come with asserting your own priorities.

WORLDVIEW

The world has an underlying unity that conflict threatens. Your role is to maintain harmony and find common ground.

CORE BELIEF

Keeping the peace keeps you connected. Asserting yourself risks the harmony you depend on.

IN YOUR OWN WORDS

"I usually notice what everyone else in the room needs long before I notice what I need myself, and I can hold several different points of view at once without feeling any push to pick one of them. Working out what I actually think about it takes me a good while longer than people expect."

THE PEACEMAKER AT A GLANCE
WHAT NINES WANT	To have inner and outer peace, and to experience a sense of belonging	WHAT NINES TEND TO AVOID	Conflict, discomfort, and feeling disregarded or disconnected
WHERE NINES TURN THEIR ATTENTION	The environment around them, potential conflict, and other people's agendas and claims on them	DRIVING EMOTION	Anger. Though present, anger goes unacknowledged in order to preserve inner and outer peace.

Typical Patterns of the Type 9 Peacemaker

1

THINKING

As a Peacemaker, your attention goes outward to everyone else's positions, agendas, and comfort, often more readily than to your own. Locating your own stance is the harder task.

2

FEELING

As a Peacemaker, you carry a steady, even temperament, but that calm can sit on top of feelings smoothed over rather than fully felt. Anger, in particular, goes quiet first.

3

BEHAVING

As a Peacemaker, your behavior organizes around not making waves: going along, smoothing things over, keeping everyone comfortable. Your steadiness is a gift, and sometimes a hiding place.
